For the Participants

For the Employer

Participants complete Health Risk Assessment (HRA) and wellness screening to establish baseline data.

Corporate wellness audits available to assess and improve work environment, policy, and culture.

Participants receive a confidential report that provides information on identified risk factors in addition to online education based on their health risks.

Employer receives a 24-page Summary Risk Report outlining their employee population's health data and recommended program strategies.

Participants can set interactive goals based on their wellness needs.

Work with the employer to set program participation and outcome goals.

Participants can track health stats and lab results as well as wellness activities and challenges.

Dedicated account executives offer ongoing feedback regarding program utilization and progress.

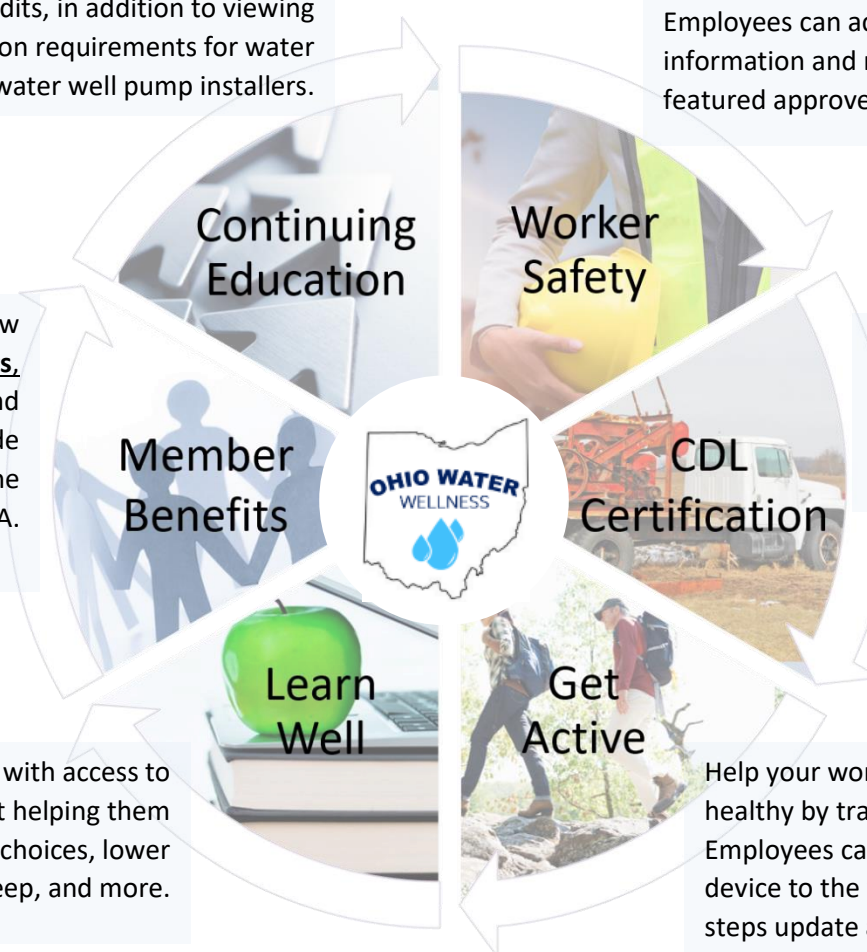

Participants can print a report of their data such as screening data, symptom diary, and exercise and nutrition logs.

Robust wellness software gives employers 24/7 access to participation and award reports. Annual Summary Risk Reports shows trends across time.

Individuals can upload and view earned Continuing Education credits, in addition to viewing continuing education requirements for water well drillers and water well pump installers.

Employees can access Worker Safety information and resources including featured approved classes and events.

Individuals can review their Member Benefits, services, and opportunities made available through the OWWA.

Help your employees be well to work with our CDL Certification resources and reminders.

Participants can Learn Well with access to online classes geared at helping them make healthy food choices, lower stress, get better sleep, and more.

Help your workforce Get Active and get healthy by tracking their physical activity. Employees can sync their favorite fitness device to the wellness portal to have their steps update automatically.
